THE ITF RUNS A GLOBAL CIRCUIT OF TOURNAMENTS THAT ARE DIVIDED INTO GRADES (OR LEVELS) BASED ON PLAYER EXPERIENCE AND RANKINGS.

• TOURNAMENT GRADES:

- ITF J30 - entry-level events within the ITF World Tennis Tour Juniors, designed for players aged 18 and under who are new to the international junior circuit or aiming to gain experience and improve their rankings
- ITF J60 - a mid-level tournament within the ITF World Tennis Tour. J60 tournaments are open to a wide range of junior players, including those who are relatively new to the circuit and those who are aiming to improve their rankings.
- ITF J100 - are designed for intermediate to advanced junior players, typically aged 13-18. This level is considered to be the next step up from the J60 level.
- ITF J200 - cater to advanced junior tennis players who consistently perform at a high level in national competitions. These players typically rank within the top 10–20% of their age groups and are focused on improving their international rankings. Success at the J200 level can serve as a stepping stone toward entry into more prestigious tournaments, such as the J300 or J500, and ultimately pave the way for a transition to the professional ATP or WTA circuits.
- ITF J300 - a higher level within the ITF Junior circuit. Players competing at this level should be highly competitive, with a strong foundation in junior tennis.
- ITF J500 - high-level junior tennis events designed for players with advanced skills and competitive experience. Eligibility typically requires a ranking within the top 500 of the ITF World Tennis Tour Junior rankings. Participants will also need to complete educational courses on the ITF Academy website. These tournaments offer substantial ranking points and serve as a key pathway to higher-level junior competitions and potential professional careers.
- Junior Grand Slam (JGS) - To participate in ITF Junior Grand Slam events, a player should be among the top-ranked junior players in the world, typically within the top 128 of the ITF Junior World Ranking. ITF Junior Ranking Point Table
